

THINK OTHERS IN GRILL ROBBERY

Police Say Man May Have Taken Some But Gang Robbed Store

Is the man who yesterday confessed through the Ogden Standard-Examiner, the person who really committed the crime, and who carried away a good sized wagonload of foodstuffs from the Grill market recently?

The police say not averting that yesterday's confession was a conscience prompted confession of a man in desperate straits, who had fished a small quantity of food for his destitute family.

The police claim that two robberies could not have been committed in the short time which elapsed between the time that Phillip Grill, proprietor of the market, left, and the time when the robbery was discovered.

The police expressed a desire this morning that the man who wrote the confession yesterday would write again, stating the time when his "robbery" took place, it being the opinion of the police that the Grill market was robbed by a well equipped gang, rather than by an individual.

Committee Studies Local Housing Outlook

The committee on housing appointed by the open forum of the chamber of commerce met in the office of Mayor Francis Thursday afternoon, to discuss plans to relieve the existing shortage of homes in the community.

The committee consists of R. C. Williamson, Leslie Hodgson, A. P. Merrill, and J. W. Abbott. W. J. Blackburn was appointed secretary of the committee.

It is the purpose of this housing committee to secure all available facts and information concerning existing conditions in population and industries, comparative increase in the use of public utilities, bank clearings and postoffice business, and the extent to which housing facilities are lacking, for presentation at the next meeting of the open forum of the chamber of commerce.

It is also to arrange for financing the building of a considerable number of additional homes in Ogden and securing the interest and cooperation of the community.

Further, the committee will present definite plans as to the cost of homes, the saving to be made by this community effort and the method of selling to prospective home owners.

Mayor Francis is to act as chairman of the next meeting of the open forum which will be held in January.

Twelve women engineers of England have formed a firm of their own which is to be staffed by women.

PAIR FINED FOR BOOTLEGGING

Judge Gives Amos Welch and Roy Wilson Chance to Stay Out of Jail

Arrested last night on a charge of selling liquor, Amos Welch and Roy Wilson appeared before the city court this morning, pleaded guilty and were sentenced to a fine of $250 or 180 days in jail.

Mrs. Jane Doe Cook, of 2810 Washington, a sister of Welch, was also arrested. A charge of selling liquor was placed against her. She entered a plea of not guilty and her case was set for trial Tuesday morning. Her bail was fixed at $200.

Welch and Wilson, according to Captain Robert Bark, admitted that they had been bootlegging for about six weeks. Welch said they had been buying the liquor for $25 a gallon and had been clearing a like sum on each gallon.

Mrs. Jane Doe Cook is said to have informed a man that he could purchase liquor from her brother.

About three phials of liquor, which exuded an odor of high proof vanilla, were seized when Welch and Wilson were arrested. This morning Wilson told the officers where an additional quantity of liquor could be found.

Officers who accompanied Wilson seized four and a half quarts of whiskey.

The men, when Judge D. R. Roberts inquired upon them the seriousness of their crime, and the penalty which would be imposed in event that they were again captured, said that they had learned a lesson and would cease their "bootlegging."

Mexican Held for Vagrancy Released

He says he didn't kill any one and didn't steal anything, so he wants a lawyer.

Thus stated an interpreter speaking for Morisio Romero, an 18 year old Mexican youth from El Paso, Texas, who appeared before Judge D. R. Roberts in the city court this morning on a vagrancy charge.

The youth was arrested at 2:30 o'clock this morning at the depot.

The boy finally decided he wanted a trial and after difficulty in having his story presented before the court, was given a ten day suspended sentence, with admonition to stay away from the depot.

He said he had been laid off work and was now awaiting another job which he had been promised. He had a small amount of money in his possession.

11-Gauge Shotgun Turned Over to Police

Somebody brought a shotgun to the police station, turning it over to the desk sergeant as property of the city. The stock was broken. The catch which governs the "breaking" apparatus at the breech of the gun was out of order.

The center of attraction of the ancient weapon was its long double barrels, however. They were too large for a 12-gauge gun and a 10-gauge shell would not fit.

Experts at the station pondered. It was examined more closely and stamped on each barrel of the gun was found the inscription "11 gauge."

Even with the proof before their eyes, some of the officers maintain that an eleven gauge shotgun was never built.
